

Clue – A Night to Remember – Script – Ver01

Characters:

Davis Einfrank: Scientist, 40's, tall and lean. Davis is crafty, and outlandish with his speech. Famous for his work in genetics—he has created machinery that can evaporate people without a trace for the military, hospitals, and morgues. He's rather emphatic, and calls things as he sees them. It's a bit abrasive—to the point where people are insulted by his demeanor. Talk to him for five minutes, and you wouldn't put it past him to kill anyone in the room.

Trent Drodge: Mystique. 30's. Average build. 3-piece suit and top-hat. Trent became famous as a street magician-turned hypnosis genius. He grew up very poor, and started doing tricks for money. Anyone with money makes him angry, and if his fortune were to be threatened, he wouldn't hesitate to do whatever it took to keep it. He's not going back to the streets.

Molly-Anna Von Tissé: Fashion Mogul. 50's. Eccentric and wild. Loud. Designer clothes head to toe. Molly-Anna was born an elite and she will surely die an elite. The one true accomplishment she has achieved over her lifetime is becoming the leader of the largest fashion group in the world—by any means necessary. She has been known to make designers whom she doesn't like disappear—their careers, at least.

Shoshanna Braggish: Mother and Restaurant Manager. 30's. Thin. Shoshanna would do anything for her kids. She hates how much all the others are corrupting the world. She thinks that, if they weren't around, the world would be a better place for her kids. She's barely able to make ends meet, and is at risk of losing her house. The wealth of the others really bothers her.

Chris Mathias: Ex-Con and Mechanic. 20's. Firm build. Chris was in the wrong place at the wrong time and went to jail for a crime he didn't commit. Now he has gotten out and lucked into a job installing security systems for wealthy homeowners. He's very careful, and doesn't want to mess up his job or make a wrong move. Prison toughened him up a lot—and taught him to fight for his life. But, above all else, he's not going back.

Story Synopsis:

Due to a booking error by the owner—five fateful people found themselves inside the quarters of 6 McKenna Drive in the Hamptons on a late-summer evening.

There was Davis Einfrank, a world-famous scientist looking to get away from his work and read over his notes for his new genetics project; Trent Drodge, a magician and mystique looking to imbibe and find investors for his upcoming illusions; Molly-Anna Von Tissé, a fashion mogul wanting nothing but solitude and a chance to unwind with her latest fashion creations; Shoshanna Braggish, a mother and restaurant owner who had been given the keys for a weekend to relax away from her family; and Chris Mathias, an ex-con who was wrongly scheduled to install a new security system across the house.

Everyone was a bit alarmed to be bumping shoulders with each other—and tensions began to rise. Davis Einfrank hated listening to Shohanna Braggish complain about how his work in science was corrupting God's divine creations. Trent Dodge was appalled by how gluttonous Molly-Anna Von Tissé allowed herself to become. Molly-Anna hated being in the same home as a pauper like Chris, and wanted to do whatever she could to get him to leave. Shoshanna couldn't believe that Trent actually tried to trick people into loving magic and his own celebrity status over the good Lord. And, Chris hated how these people made it impossible for him to install the new security system. If he failed at his job, he'd have to report to his sponsor—who might have him go back to jail.

At half-passed midnight, sirens of a new security system sounded off at deafening volumes. Everyone rushed downstairs to Molly-Anna Von Tissé's clothes covered in blood—with her body gone.

ANSWER: Trent Drodge was attempting to kill Shoshanna, but, in the dark, killed Molly-Anna by accident. Shoshanna had learned from Chris that Trent was responsible for his incarceration, and while Trent couldn't help Chris knowing that, he didn't want a loud-mouth person like Shoshanna telling everyone else—and the world—that he had been involved. This would ruin his career.

So, in the dead of night, he had followed Shoshanna into Molly-Anna's quarters. Trent had overheard that Shoshanna wanted to steal Molly-Anna's clothes for herself. Thinking he was attacking Shoshanna—Trent mistakenly killed Molly-Anna.

Knowing about Davis Einfrank's scientific devices, he made Molly-Anna's body disappear.